Developer Ray Watt Given Home Show Merit Award

Ray Watt, prominent Torrance builder, has been named recipient of the annual "Home Builders' Merit Award," it was announced this week by Wilbur S. Hokom, president of the Los Angeles Home Show, which made the award.

Watt, president of the R.A. Watt Construction Co., was honored by civic and business leaders and members of the press during a special luncheon at the Los Angeles headquarters of the Southern California and Southern Counties Gas Companies, who will sponsor Watt's "Provident" model home during the 1968 Los Angeles Home Show.

WATT, WHO IS second vice president of the Home Builders Assn., and past president of the Young Builders Council, has recently completed construction on the "Provident" model home for the Home Show, which opened an 11-day run at the Memorial Sports Arena last Thursday.

During a decade of home building in the Los Angeles metropolitan area, Watt has erected more than 60 residential developments and 8000 dwellings. Simultaneously with the first showing of his Home Show Sunray model, the "Provident," he will unveil three new developments — La Mirada, Westminster and West Covina, where the "Balanced Power" house will be available in several versions in addition to the Sports Arena model.

Church Members Noting New Navajo Facilities

Members of Torrance Seventh-day Adventist Church, 1610 Acacia Ave., are marking the recent opening of a major medical facility for Navajo Indians which they have helped build.

The new facility is a 23-bed, $150,000, ultra-modern hospital located in the colorful Monument Valley area of Southern Utah and Northern Arizona. Its opening has been made possible by gifts of members of the local Adventist Church.

According to Pastor Glenn Goffar, the new hospital is the only one in a 100-mile-either-way area some 600 miles from Los Angeles and located on the Arizona-Utah border near the "Four Corners" area where Colorado, Utah, Arizona and New Mexico meet.

THE NEW hospital will care for thousands of Navajo Indians living in the area as well as greatly increased numbers of tourists who visit Monument Valley. The hospital is located in Rock Door Canyon, an awesome and inspiring area of towering red rock monuments that tower hundreds of feet into the air.

In the swirling desert sands

PASTOR GOFFAR said the Seventh-day Adventist Church has maintained a small medical clinic in the area for the past 12 years but not until two years ago were funds available to build the new hospital.

The nearest hospitals to the area in which the new facility is located are 100 miles in either direction — north or southwest — at Monticello, Utah, and at Tuba City, Ariz. Often desperately ill Indians would die in the clinic's ambulance during the 100-mile race to these hospitals in the past. Now it is expected many of these deaths will be prevented because of the new facility.

PASTOR GOFFAR said Cree Sandefur, Glendale, president of the Southern California Conference of Adventists, represented the local congregation at the opening of the new hospital. Also participating was Paul Jones, chairman of the Navajo Tribal Council and Annie Wauneka, chairman of the health and welfare commission of the Navajo Tribal Council. A personal representative of Utah's Governor Clyde also was present.

"It is with great joy that we note the opening of this new hospital which will do so much to give more adequate medical care to the Navajo," Pastor Goffar said in announcing the hospital's opening. "And it gives each member of our congregation individual pleasure to know that they have had such a direct part in this happy occasion."

"There are many persons in Torrance who have given help to the Navajos in months past in many ways," Pastor Goffar said, "and to this large group also, the opening of this new facility will undoubtedly bring joy."

Fellowship To Meet at Area Church
The Men's Fellowship Group of Calvary Community Church announces their next meeting will be on Saturday, June 3. All men in the area are invited to attend the meeting which will begin with dinner at 6:30 p.m. The church is located at 1117 Milton St.

Special guest speaker will be Navy Chaplain Gerald Cox, who is assigned to the Shore Patrol Office in the Harbor District.
